

Quiz: Are You a Type C Personality?

You've been assigned to a new project at work with a group that spans different departments. Here's where you fit in the group:

- a. You immediately take the lead, assign roles and responsibilities, generate ideas, and keep the project moving forward
- b. You are a solid worker bee, fulfilling the jobs and tasks given to you and meeting expectations
- c. You are the glue that holds the team together - if people falter, you are there to step in and help; you act as mediator or peacekeeper when necessary

You are approached by a friend to take over the school auction. Your response:

- a. 1000% yes. This will look great on my resume and I love being in charge!
- b. Is it possible to take a lesser role, like serving on one of the committees?
- c. Sure no problem, I'm happy to help out the school and I know we are short on volunteers (though secretly have very little time to take this on, and not much interest)

Your spouse is leaving on a week-long business trip. He's quite instrumental in helping manage the household - he does the laundry, cooks breakfast for the children, and pays the bills. How do you manage when he's gone?

- a. Send the laundry out, tell the kids to fix their own breakfast, tell him to pay the bills from the road
- b. Let the laundry and bills wait until he's back, put cereal out for the kids
- c. Step in and get it all done in his absence - surely he would do the same for you?

You find out a colleague at work is bad mouthing you to the boss in order to get a promotion you are competing for. You:

- a. Lose your temper and confront the colleague
- b. Decide to let it slide this time - everyone trash talks every now and then
- c. Stew in silence - how dare she? But confronting her is too painful ...

You're at dinner with a group of friends. The check arrives.

You:

- a. Whip out your calculator and tell everyone how much they owe
- b. Let someone else take charge of figuring it all out and pitch in whatever he/she tells you to
- c. Put it all on your card and tell people to venmo you whenever it's convenient for them